Marxism - the political economic and social theories of Karl Marx. It includes the belief that the struggle between social classes is a major force in history and that there should be a socialist society. Marxist ideology promotes the idea that class struggle has been the main agency of historical change and that capitalism will inevitably be superseded by a socialist order.

Definition of Marxism - The system of thought developed by Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels, esp. the doctrines that class struggle has been the main agency of historical change and that capitalism will inevitably be superseded by a socialist order.

Examples of Marxist Thought:
1. Dialectical Materialism: The idea that contradictions within society lead to progressive change.
2. Historical Materialism: The idea that the mode of production is the main determinant of society.
3. Class Struggle: The idea that conflict between classes drives historical change.

Resources for Learning About Marxism:
- Historical Dictionaries: "The Development of Exegesis in the Qur'an" by Hillirwin.
- Academic Journals: "International Accounting" by Doupnik.
- Online Dictionaries: "Marxism Definition of Marxism" by Merriam-Webster.

Other Related Topics:
- Materialism: The idea that the material world is the most fundamental aspect of existence.
- Capitalism: An economic system characterized by private ownership of the means of production.
- Socialism: An economic and political ideology that advocates for public or collective ownership of the means of production.

Books and Articles:
- "The Development of Exegesis in the Qur'an" by Hillirwin.
- "International Accounting" by Doupnik.
- "Materialism and Historical Materialism" by Marx and Engels.

Online Resources:
- AllAboutPhilosophy.org
- Britannica.com
- Investopedia
- VoiceActorsGuideToRecording.com
- Dictionary.com

Keywords:
- Marxism
- Karl Marx
- Friedrich Engels
- Class Struggle
- Capitalism
- Socialism
- Dialectical Materialism
- Historical Materialism

Related Topics:
- Economics
- Politics
- History
- Philosophy